

FACTSHEET - AS OF 22-Feb-2024

DER AKTIONÄR Europa Inflation Index

DESCRIPTION

With an inflation rate of 5.1 percent, life is currently more expensive than it has been for a long time. This is due to the sharp rise in prices for fuel, heating oil, electricity and gas. According to Statista, the prices of heating oil in February rose by almost 30 percent compared to the previous month. That doesn't make investing any easier. Inflation coupled with rising interest rates are particularly disadvantageous for technology stocks and start-ups. Companies that have a strong position in the market and also have a high price enforcement power for their products are more resistant to inflation.

DER AKTIONÄR has taken this as an opportunity to issue the "DER AKTIONÄR Europe Inflation Index". This index contains a total of 10 index components, including 9 stocks from utilities such as Enel and RWE, from finance and insurance such as Deutsche Bank and Allianz, as well as luxury goods manufacturer LVMH and food retailer Pernod Ricard. The precious metal in the form of Xetra Gold occupies the tenth and highest index weighting at 19 percent.
